Dear Sir,

It has been brought to our attention that a number of grievances are being registered on the National Consumer Helpline (NCH) about the fact that many retail stores are compelling consumers to submit their mobile number before purchasing a product. Further, in case of denial to provide the same, consumers were, in many cases, denied their rights under the Consumer Protection Act, 2019 ('Act') by retailers either declining to sell the product or service and/or also rejecting any refund, exchange etc. A sample of such complaints is attached herewith as Annexure – I.

2. It may be mentioned that insisting on mobile number during the sale of a product as a pre-requisite mandatory condition, even when a consumer opts not to provide the same, is a violation of their rights and constitutes unfair trade practice under the Act.

3. "Consumer rights", as defined under Section 2(9) of the Act includes the right to seek redressal against unfair trade practice or restrictive trade practices or unscrupulous exploitation of consumers. Further, sub-sections 46 and 47 of Section 2 of the Act define "unfair contract" and "unfair trade practices" respectively, which inter alia includes:-

- (i) imposing on the consumer any unreasonable charge, obligation or condition which puts such consumer to disadvantage.
- (ii) disclosing to other person any personal information given in confidence by the consumer unless such disclosure is made in accordance with the provisions of any law for the time being in force.

4. You would be aware that under Section 72-A of the Information Technology Act, 2000, disclosing personal information of a person including mobile number obtained at the time of a sale, without her/his consent or in breach of a lawful contract, to any other person, is a punishable offence.

5. By imposing a mandatory requirement to provide mobile number, consumers are often forced to share their personal information, against their will, after which consumers are often flooded with marketing and promotional messages from retailers, which they did not even opt for at the time of purchasing the product.

6. Restricting consumers to buy products or to return, exchange, and refund or resolving consumer grievance solely on the ground that the consumer has not shared her/his mobile number, constitutes unfair trade practice under the

Act. In the absence of breach of any other terms and conditions of sale, mere non-sharing of phone number cannot be a ground to deprive consumers from exercising their rights under the Act.

7. The Department has taken a serious note of this situation. I urge upon you to suitably advise the retailers that mobile number of the consumers should not be taken without their express consent at the time of sale of any goods or services and, providing the same should not ^{be} made a mandatory pre-condition for sale. Your cooperation in this regard will be highly appreciated.

With regards,

Yours sincerely,

(Rohit Kumar Singh) 26/05/23
